KILLING THE GOOSE

The Florida citrus industry at this time represented by the state citrus commission, which ought to know better—is up to its old trick of killing the goose that lays the golden eggs.

Nothing will ruin the business quicker than shipping sun fruit. Yet that is exactly what the citrus commission has just authorized. Yielding to pressure from interest-stuck with frost damaged stuff, the commission has agreed to let it go to market. As a result grapefruit, oranges and lemons with as many as 15 out of 100 spoiled, and the rest not much good, will soon be giving Florida another black eye by the thousands.

In urging this action a member of the commission declared that unless it were done it would "interrupt many operators." Now, growers, mind you, but "operators." That term covers a multitude of sinners such as speculators, "operators" who buy and sell the fruit, scavengers who gather drops and culls, packing houses which won't get to handle so many crates as they used to, and the grades, and the ragtag and bobtail of a complicated marketing system. These "operators" will profit by the commission's leniency but it will be at the expense of the bulk of growers and shippers who have been honestly trying to maintain a good name—and consequently a good price—for Florida fruit.

What will happen when retail customer gets that lot of damaged fruit: finds two out of a dozen spoiled and the rest dry and tasteless? Will he come back the next day for Florida fruit or will he try something from California or Texas? If the latter, the commission doesn't know what will happen it is because they don't want to remember. The answer lies no further back than when they permitted green fruit to inaugurate the annual market and set it back for as many weeks as it took consumers to get the product out of their mouths. It also lies in the stern action taken by California last winter when the shipment of frozen damaged fruit was rigorously forbidden lest it hurt the sale of good California fruit.

In defense of what the citrus commission has done, the argument was advanced that the off-grade stuff would go out mostly in bulk by truck to neighboring southern states and would not compete in markets to which trademarked Florida fruit is mainly shipped. That may be true but it doesn't make the deal all right. Florida has plenty of good fruit to supply all demands and every time it had oranges or grapefruit are shipped they simply replace that many good ones.

The citrus commission annually assesses growers thousands of dollars to advertise the virtues of Florida fruit. Then it turns right around and ships 15 bad ones out of 100 with no telling what the rest will be by the time the commission gets them. If there is any sense to urging people to buy fruit that will turn them against buying any more, the citrus commission can claim to have done it. There is a new wrinkle in merchandising. Otherwise the six out of nine members who voted for that measure should be sent to Chatterbox—St. Myers News-Press.

Orange Festival Ready for Opening

WINTER HAVEN, Jan. 13. (FNS)—When the gates of the Florida Orange Festival are flung open on Jan. 17 for the tenth annual exhibit, it will herald the greatest citrus show in the history of the state, according to festival officials.

The two mammoth new steel and concrete exhibition halls and all available space on the grounds will be filled to capacity with exhibits. The Florida Citrus Exchange has taken a large space in the first exhibition hall which will be devoted exclusively to citrus displays. Citrus by-products and allied industrial and commercial firms have used all available space in the second exhibition hall. Numerous other exhibits will fill the exhibits between the halls and the midway and the entrance to the exposition.

The educational exhibit, which will be housed in a large, circular tent, will constitute one of the main features of the festival. Home educational displays will be supplied by the schools of the counties in the citrus belt, and J. M. Leps, supervising principal of the Winter Haven schools, will have charge of the exhibition. Exhibits from the negro school will be displayed in a separate building.

The queen of the festival and her court of six maids will be chosen on opening night at the opening ceremony on Jan. 17. Sixteen of the entrants of various clubs of south central and coastal Florida will be the coronation ball will be held on the night of January 16.

CIVIL SERVICE JOBS GIVEN
The United States Civil Service Commission has announced open competitive examinations for the following positions:

AUTO RACES AT FAIR

TAMPA, Jan. 13.—Daredevilry will be the order of the day at the Florida State Fair, January 25 to February 5, according to the thrills packed programs that General Manager P. T. Strieder has just announced for daily entertainment in front of the grandstand.

Besides a series of automobile races with noted stars competing several aviation daredevil exhibits, the human cannon ball act, in which a man is shot from a giant gun higher than the grandstand, and other noteworthy events, Manager Strieder has secured the Great Floresco, the man without nerves, who performs on a slender, swaying perch 125 feet in the air.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

By Russell Kay.

With the Pinellas County Fair at Largo and the Hardee County Strawberry Festival at Bowling Green in progress this week, the Manatee County Fair at Bradenton and the Florida Orange Festival at Winter Haven scheduled for next week, and the great Florida State Fair and Gasparilla carnival opening at Tampa January 25, there are still a few Florida tourists and winter visitors who find plenty to interest and entertain them for the next few weeks.

While all of these events are more or less similar in character, presented in a fair and carnival setting, there is enough difference in each to make it well worth while to attend them all.

Ranking as one of the finest county fairs in the country, the Pinellas fair at Largo attracts visitors from all sections of the west coast. At Bowling Green the largest citrus products show in the south is being presented on a background of a delightful and pleasing celebration.

The Florida Orange Festival at Winter Haven is statewide in scope, is unique and different from anything else in the festival line, a marvelous and glorious display of citrus fruit, citrus products and citrus by-products. It is the only one of its kind that covers all phases of the citrus industry. The fruit exhibits, arranged by experienced artisans make the great citrus show appear as a horticultural fairland.

Housed in new exhibition buildings, the show itself is outstanding. It is only one feature of the week's festivities: street parades and pageants, selection of Florida's queen, chess, picking and packing contests, a baby show, children's parade, daily programs presenting the finest in outdoor entertainment, and a variety of other amusements for the fun-lover.

Brilliant and colorful is the annual Queen Contest, which is held on the festival grounds the opening night. The first daughters from Florida's citrus growing areas, sponsored by civic clubs and other organizations, parade in evening dress before the judges' stand and delegates to the sections they represent applaud their favorites as they pass in review.

Entirely different in character and designed to present the products of one of the state's richest citrus growing areas, the Manatee County Fair at Bradenton offers attractive displays of fruits and vegetables.

The tourist or visitor attending one of all of the above mentioned events might be inclined to feel that the Florida State Fair could offer little more in the form of exhibits and entertainment. But they will find the big show goes far beyond the fields covered by these other interesting events. It takes on the aspect of a great national exposition with twenty-two new and modern exhibition buildings jammed full of displays of tropical and sub-tropical fruits, vegetables, hay, grain and forage crops, a gigantic poultry show, a splendid cattle show, school exhibits, women's work, a marvelous flower show, a honey show, the famed Florida National Exhibition staged so successfully in Chicago, New York and Cleveland, the display industries exhibit, and many others—most of them occupying an entire building.

While the fair itself presents enough in the form of artistic exhibits and unique displays to require several days' time, if the visitor wishes to see it all there is sufficient additional amusement and entertainment to keep one in the city or on the fair grounds for the entire 11-day period.

The peak of contest is the famed Gasparilla parade and pageant to be staged this year on Monday, January 31, when the burly, pirate krewes sail up Tampa Bay to capture the city and parade its streets to the fair grounds when, before a packed grandstand, half a hundred magnificent floats parade the reviewing stand and in a brilliant ceremony the mayor surrenders the city to the invaders.

Of equal interest, and attracting almost as many spectators, is the annual Shriners celebration and ceremony. Nobles from all over the United States join in a mad day of fun and frolic; downtown streets are roped off and beginning at 8 in the morning throngs of laughing spectators stand for hours to watch the antics that attend the proper preparation of candidates who later in the day will be required to travel across the hot sands.

Amusing and entertaining beyond description is the big Shriners parade which is staged at noon. Elephants and camels as well as much circus paraphernalia, borrowed from the winter quarters of Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey at Sarasota, help add highlights to start judging by 10 o'clock. The show will be open to the public during the noon hour and afternoon. The committee will display a number of varieties of inarigolds in various arrangements as suggestions for these planning entries.

Mrs. C. E. Fockes, president, presided over the business session during which reports on the citrus festival party, the year book sale and the baking contest were heard. The prize ribbons to winners in the baking contest were presented. Mrs. Louise Ravelle received a blue ribbon on Florida fruit cake, Mrs. H. C. Willis, blue and red ribbons on cookies, Mrs. Frank Brown blue ribbon for economical fruit cake, Mrs. Walter Schirlock blue ribbon for pineapple up-side-down cake, butter cake, plums and citrus yeast rolls.

Mrs. Bartlow received sweepstakes for highest number of entries and ribbons.

It was announced that the senior county council would convene at South Bay on January 27, which coincides with the date set for the Marigold show, and the Junior County Council in Pahokee during February. The president appointed committee to make arrangements for the entertainment of the council. Announcement of the citrus festival to take place at Winter Haven next week was also made and members urged to work up citrus products for display.

The program was on the subject, "Wise Selection of China and Glass for the Home" which was discussed by Mrs. G. H. Brown. Her talk was illustrated by a display of China and glass arranged by Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Meade Willis. Samples of the trends of China and glass used by homeswives for four generations were on exhibit. A cup and saucer over a hundred years old in a deep blue pattern gave a hint of China in the fourth generation back. A tea set of gold and blue egg shell China which was brought home from China by a bride of the seventies on her husband's tea service, displayed the use of the bird and butterfly motifs of the Chinese in China patterns of the third generation back. A matched set of cut glass was displayed as a wedding gift to bride of the second generation. The display of current patterns ranged from a table set with China, glass and linen of the ten cent store variety through hand painted breakfast

South Bay 4-H Club Hears Report By Miss Goodbread On Trip

SOUTH BAY, Jan. 7. — The 30 members of the Junior 4-H club met under the leadership of Mrs. E. M. VanLandingham and Mrs. Edith V. Barras, county agent, received the darning of hosiery, their sewing requirement for the year. They also made plans to enter flowers and vegetables from their gardens in the Marigold Show on January 27.

A joint-business and program session was conducted by the Senior and Junior 4-H clubs, an arrangement which will continue the remainder of the year, the two clubs conducting their own sewing, gardening, canning and poultry projects as outlined for their respective groups at home and in special work sessions.

Mrs. Betty Rawls, president, presided over the business session after which Miss Goodbread, county agent, attended the National 4-H club Congress in Chicago in November, made her formal report of her trip and displayed trophies received at the various functions and events. The second number on the study of "How to Build Character and a Pleasing Personality" was presented.

Plans were also laid for participation in the Marigold Show and for their baking contest which they plan to put on as a part of the Silver Tea over which they will preside during the afternoon of the show.

The monthly buffet supper in connection with the food nutrition program was served to Mrs. Barras, Mrs. Louise Rawls, sponsor, Mrs. Eustice Stokes, county agent, 4-H club leader, Jessie and Madie McLeod, Betty and Louise Rawls, June Goodbread, Edith Aley, Elsie Mae Willis, Gwendolyn Brown, Marguerite and Lucille Barnes.

Punta Gorda, Fla. — Spring plantings of tomatoes, peppers, and cucumbers will be heavier in 1938 than in past years in Charlotte county, according to County Agent N. H. McQueen. Under recent favorable growing conditions, seed-beds made steady and rapid progress.

Plant City Attorney Lands Grandpappy Of Black Bass Weighing 19 Lbs. 9 Ozs

What a fish story. Here is one we heard in the "columns" of the Plant City Courier, published in that thriving strawberry center in the heart of the county. Evidently all of the spare time isn't spent "growing strawberries." The story as it appeared is reprinted in full.

After hearing tall stories these many years, about the "grandpappy" of all large mouth black bass being caught, here and there, in a nine-teen-pound, nine-ounce, large mouth black bass last Saturday evening. The local attorney landed this big dealer of cool, Paces county waters about 5:30 Saturday afternoon up in the county to the north.

Bringing the fish to the Arthur Tickle's place of business on South Collins street "for observation by the populace," the fish caused quite a sensation in this man's town as hundreds of Saturday night shoppers and visitors, gazed in wonder upon the huge specimen. It was estimated that close to a thousand persons viewed the big fish before it was taken from its box-of-ice berth yesterday at Tickle's bicycle shop to be mounted for posterity.

It was the biggest fish ever to be brought into this haven of fish by bringing in a nine-teen-pound, nine-ounce, large mouth black bass.

Attorney Henderson caught the big fish on a Heddon Tropic-hall, an underwater bait with which he had been fishing slowly. The fish gave him a rather nice battle before being landed.

The record-breaker measured 29 3/4 inches in length, 26 3/4 inches around the girth, 23 1/2 inches around at the gills and had a tail spread of eight inches.

NEWS NOTES FROM THE UNIVERSITY

By James W. Beardsley

Gainesville: Last Monday some thousand University of Florida students returned to their classes with the determination to put forth much effort and time on their respective studies for the next four weeks at least. The mid-year examinations will begin January 21 and continue through February 5. An Inter-Semester day, the campus has that high academic air about it at it with everyone working about studying and forgetting other activities until after-exams are over.

Registration day for the second semester will be Feb. 7, and classes will be resumed on Wednesday, Feb. 8, for all colleges and students in the University.

I AM IN THE MARKET FOR Everything That Grows On Glades Farms

When the market is low and it looks like you won't get any return at all on your crop — Sell it to J. Q. in the field.

To those who have helped to make our business a success and to our friends and customers we extend greetings of the season.
